Done it again

By Hannah Britton

I have been a fan of miss Atkinson ever since I stumbled upon her book Tangled up in you and fell in love with the Savioe family. Lost in the moment picks up about where Tangled up in you ends, but you get no less enjoyment from Marie and Marcus's dance of love as you did with Luke and Roxy's. Even if the book hadn't been offered as free, I was looking to buy this next installment and am patiently waiting for her to write the third novel. Marcus's character is developed a little rough around the edges, but a heart of gold and Marie comes across as both shy and determined with a side of tough as nails. I really enjoyed reading this novel and hearing more about the Savioe family and possible or existing love interests.

Marcus Dresden

By Rene Ramsey

Drez and Marie finding out more about these two characters was a joy. He's a misunderstood new kid and she's a sheltered only girl in a rough and tumble family full of boys. This was a nice continuation of the series. Seeing the events of the previous book from a bit of an outsider's perspective was nice. Even seeing

Mr. Saintshill from someone else's view helped me understand him a little more. Marie is not confident in herself, and for some reason is afraid getting hurt. I wonder if she's been hurt previously. Drez is understandably afraid after losing his entire family the previous year. The animosity between Jess and Beau is odd. In the first book she had a crush on him and he said he wasn't interested. I find Jess's actions puzzling she seems almost jealous of Roxy and Marie. She's becoming shady and I don't like it. I am really looking forward to the next book in the series.

The book flowed much better, again definitely better for the 18+ crowd. I see a few minor mistakes using the wrong word here or there. Nothing glaringly obvious. This book could be read without reading 'Tangled Up in You' because it does give an explanation of what happened then. But having read both books made it more complete.
